Repps Riverside

Walk Instructions:

1. With Heigham Bridge behind you, and the restaurant on your left proceed ahead and join the cycle path and footpath which runs alongside the road. Head towards the main road the A149; ignore the path leading towards the river.
2. Turn right, as the cycle and footpath crosses over the junction, before the main road, cross here with caution. Once on the other side join the footpath, which runs parallel with the road.
3. At Low Road, turn right at the post box. Continue along this quiet lane after the footpath has ended.
4. Soon you will come to a village bench on your right, directly opposite a thatched cottage. Turn right at this bench, towards the allotments. Look for the finger sign pointing the way. Follow the footpath along the field edge, passing a utility station. The footpath follows the hedgerow. As the hedgerow ends this well defined footpath continues across the middle of a meadow. At the junction continue straight ahead, follow a ridge of trees towards a derelict farm building. After you have passed the farm building on you right, the grassy track becomes much wider as it runs between two fields.
5. The track meets with a lane, called Staithe Road, later becoming Pug Street. Turn right onto this lane and continue ahead as it winds its way to the river Thurne.
